1. Near the village of Osim, district of Glowno (N 51-58, E 19-44), province of Lowicz, there is a plant employing over a thousand workers which produces military Vehicles. The plant and the workers' homes are surrounded by barbed wire and are considered a military zone. The area is under close surveillance and entry to production zones is prohibited not only to outsiders but also to employees of the plant. The director of the plant is a Russian who speaks very little Polish.

2. A former major in the Polish Army reported that the largest number of high-level Soviet military headquarters are no longer in Cignica<sup>1</sup>, but are now in Stalinograd (formerly Katowice), in Silesia.
